

SKULL FRACTURED WITH BEER BOTTLE

Henry Emigh Killed in Fight at
Morrisdale

ASSAILANT NOT REVEALED

Reluctance of Witnesses to Fight Peccoliar and the Wielder of the Bottle is Being Shielded by His Friends—Family of Dead Man May Investigate Case.

Dr. George W. Emigh, of Philipsburg, was in Clearfield today applying for letters of administration on the estate of his brother, Henry Emigh, who died at the home of Dr. Emigh on Wednesday, November 5.

Henry Emigh was a resident of Morrisdale, where he worked as a coal miner and at other labor. His death revealed a story which has some very peculiar features about it and which may yet find its way into court.

Hit With Beer Bottle.

Sometime in the latter part of October about ten days before election, Henry Emigh and some person as yet unknown engaged in a political dispute at one of the hotels in Morrisdale. It is alleged that the argument finally led to a fight in which Emigh's opponent was getting the worst of it and seizing an empty beer bottle he is said to have hit Emigh on the back of the head. Emigh was knocked insensible and a Morrisdale physician was in attendance upon him for eight or ten days.

May Be Manslaughter.

On November 1 Dr. Emigh had his brother removed to Philipsburg, where it was discovered that he had sustained a fracture of the skull at the base of the brain which caused his death. Nothing could be done for the injured man and on November 5 he died. His funeral was held on Friday, November 7.

There is so much mystery about the affair that up to this time no correct story of the fight can be ascertained. The witnesses to the affair and reticent, and the identity of the man who used the beer bottle has not yet been learned. It is stated the man who is suspected of the murderous attack will claim that he hit Emigh in self-defense.

No Investigation.

Although the fight in which Emigh was fatally hurt occurred about two weeks ago, no investigation has been made of the matter. Dr. Emigh and other relatives of the dead man will endeavor to discover the identity of the man who wielded the beer bottle which is alleged to have been the weapon that caused Emigh's death. Emigh was in his 51st year and unmarried.

MOTHER BRINGS BACK HER RUNAWAY BOY

Little Tommy Fleming Had Harrowing Experience

Thomas Fleming, of Gramplan, who ran away from his home last Friday, was found in Williamsport Monday by the Reading station agent. The Gazette and Bulletin of that city gives the following additional information of the boy's experience as a runaway in his issue of Wednesday:

Thomas Fleming, the young lad who was brought to Williamsport Monday afternoon by Stationmaster Garrison of the Reading, was still in evidence at the police station Tuesday evening. His father is expected at any time, and when he comes there will be waiting for him a youngster who is ready to go back to "home and mother." Conversation with the boy elicited quite an interesting little story.

He bought a ticket at Clearfield and arrived in Williamsport Friday of last week at midnight. Hunting around for a place to sleep young Thomas settled himself in a canvas-covered motor boat, under the Market street bridge. During Saturday he wandered about the streets selling a few newspapers which he claims were given him by local news boys, and living on sandwiches purchased with money he had left from his railroad fare. Saturday night was again spent in the motor boat, in spite of the frigid weather. There was nothing exciting doing in Williamsport on Saturday and as his money had run out the nerry had decided to walk home. He had no definite idea as to just where "Gramplan," his home town was, but struck out towards Halls Station, along the tracks of the Reading railroad. By Saturday evening he had not reached Halls so he crawled into a hay stack on the farm of Martin Ault, and slept there overnight. He reached Halls Station some time during Sunday and, finding no better place to rest at night time, he dropped his weary little body onto the seat in the telephone booth at the railroad station. Here he was found by a citizen of Halls, who notified Stationmaster Garrison, holding him until that gentleman arrived.

While "on the road" his only food was the apples he could get from wayside orchards. Thomas is a bright-eyed sturdy little chap and has carried himself like a man making no complaint at any time as to any hardships endured, and always answering all questions in a straightforward manner.

When he left for the night Chief Harder gave the lad some good fatherly advice, counseling him above all else to always stick to his mother as, while other things of life might come in bunches, there would never be more than one mother. Thomas could not trust himself to answer but merely nodded his head, fighting back the tears, while the "boys" of the force silently agreed to the sentiment.

Mrs. Fleming went to Williamsport Wednesday and brought her son home where he will remain contented until he grows older at least.

CLEVELAND FACES SEVERE FAMINE

No Milk For 1,500 Babies In
Storm Bound City.

LIVES LOST ON THE LAKES.

Ten Bodies Found on Canadian Shore. Regina, a Freighter, With Crew of Forty, Lost—Fear That Another Lake Tug Was Destroyed—One Hundred and Fifty Men May Be Dead.

Cleveland, O., Nov. 13. With this city under two to six feet of snow the problem of distributing the available food and coal supplies caused great anxiety. Fifteen hundred babies have been without milk for thirty-six hours, and prospects of getting any milk into the city were not very good, but of other food, except green stuff, a fairly large supply is on hand. The big milk companies made sales only to those who wanted it for infants, and the greater part of the demand was thus supplied.

Factories began shutting down because of the shortage of coal, and they may not be able to open for a week. Retail dealers say that the supply of coal for dwellings and apartment houses depends on deliveries, which just now are impossible.

TWO STEAMERS LOST.

Crew of Forty on Regina Known to Be Dead—Others Missing.

Port Huron, Mich., Nov. 13.—Although many vessel men are firm in their belief that the freight steamship which capsized in Lake Huron, a few miles northeast of here, during the recent gale, is the Regina of the Merchants' Transportation company of Toronto, others are equally convinced that she is not. It is regarded as certain, however, that the Regina went down during the storm. The difference of opinion concerning the identity of the overturned vessel is due to the fact that the hull of the vessel is reported as being black, and the Regina is said to have had a green bottom.

An official representing the owners of the Regina has visited the scene of the wreck, and he does not believe that it is his vessel. A theory held by many is that there was a collision between the unidentified vessel and the Regina, that the former overturned immediately, while the Regina's crew abandoned her and took to lifeboats. Those who adhere to this belief think that the wreck of the Regina will be found in another place.

Lake Tug Missing With Ten Men. Menominee, Mich., Nov. 13. It was reported here that the tug Martin had foundered in Lake Michigan during Sunday's gale and that her crew of nine men was drowned.

It also was reported that Chris Keenan, a deputy United States marshal was on the tug and lost his life.

HON. VICTOR MURDOCK TOMORROW EVENING

Famous Lecturer to Speak in
Y. M. C. A.

Tomorrow evening, in the Y. M. C. A. in Clearfield, Hon. Victor Murdock, Kansas, will open the Lyceum course in this place. Mr. Murdock is an eloquent talker who discusses public questions in a straightforward undistasteful manner. He has gained a national reputation as a lecturer and his well-known Progressive ideas have aroused the attention of the country.

The opportunity to hear this gifted orator should not be missed by the people of Clearfield. It is not often that the citizens have the chance to listen to a lecture by such a bright, versatile man such as Victor Murdock is, and those who will hear him tomorrow night will be well repaid for the trouble they will take to attend the lecture.

Victor Murdock, while in congress has been a thorn in the side of those members of that body who have been doing all in their power to advance the interests of those selfish combinations which have grown rich by robbing the people. He is a reformer who honestly seeks to bring about reforms, and his work along that line has caused the old political party leaders many sleepless nights.

Be sure to attend the lecture tomorrow night. Tickets, 75 and 50c.

GEORGE FULFORD, ESQ., DIES SUDDENLY

Succumbs to Asthma After
Long Illness

George Fulford, a member of the Clearfield county bar, died unexpectedly at 4 o'clock this morning at the home of his mother, Mrs. Nan Fulford, on Pine street.

Mr. Fulford had been a sufferer from asthma for some time and was compelled to sit in a chair at night at times. This morning at 3 o'clock his mother was aroused by a noise which she discovered was being made by her son in his efforts to relieve his throat. She summoned Drs. Waterworth and Piper, and they did all that could be done to relieve him, but their efforts to save his life were of no avail, death coming at 4 o'clock.

George Fulford was a well-known man, having been a member of the bar for a number of years. He was 42 years of age and leaves two children. His mother and two brothers, Harry, in the insurance business in Clearfield, and John, at DuBois, also survive.

Will Build New Opera House.

Philipsburg is to have a new opera house next year, parties having decided to give that town another theater building. With a first class opera house in Philipsburg, it is expected that much better shows will come to Clearfield, as the two houses would shorten the distance the troupes would have to travel from Tyrone to this town.

MAY RECOGNIZE GEN. CARRANZA

Hale's Conferences With Rebel
Leader Significant.

MUCH DEPENDS ON OUTCOME

President's Friend Believed to Be Furnishing Information For Official Purposes, as on Preceding Occasion, in Mexico—Huerta's Garrison at Tuxpan Hard Pressed.

Washington, Nov. 13.—Conferences held between William Bayard Hale and General Venustiano Carranza at Nogales are interpreted in official circles here as the first open move by the United States government to show its interest in the Constitutional movement in Mexico.

No officials commented on Mr. Hale's exact status, but on a previous occasion, when he spent three months in Mexico City gathering information, President Wilson let it be known that Mr. Hale was there as his personal friend. Mr. Hale transmitted reports, however, and took part in conferences with John Lind and Rear Admiral Fletcher. Little doubt exists in diplomatic circles that while Mr. Hale still retains the character of unofficial envoy he is furnishing the Washington government information for official purposes.

It was pointed out by some observers that Mr. Hale's conferences were not necessarily a forerunner of recognition, but might be an important factor in determining the future attitude of the Washington government toward the Constitutionalists.

Will Report on Carranza.

Mr. Hale probably will report on the personal characteristics of General Carranza, whether he has the united support of all Constitutionalists or revolutionists and whether, if successful by arms, he would establish a provisional government that would guarantee a fair and free election. There is also a possibility that the information he gathers may be useful to the state department in its exchanges with foreign diplomats here. The diplomatic corps in Mexico City is said to be at a disadvantage in making reports on the Constitutionalists, as its only source of information there is the Huerta government.

WILL ISSUE STATEMENT.

Officially Announced That Wilson Will Announce Mexican Policy.

Washington, Nov. 13.—It was officially announced that President Wilson will issue a statement soon denouncing the policy of this government toward Mexico. No definite time has been set for the statement, but it is believed that it will come within a day or two.

This statement probably will be a full recital of what this government has done in the City of Mexico and a declaration of the policy of the United States toward Huerta and his acts.

It undoubtedly will serve notice on the world that the United States will not recognize the acts of the Mexican dictator or of the congress about to convene and that this government will continue to insist that Huerta must go.

HUERTA WOULD FIGHT.

Dictator, It is Said, Does Not Fear the United States.

Mexico City, Nov. 13.—Blinded by his boundless ambition and a sincere belief that he can "lick the United States," as some of his close advisers have been reported to express it, Provisional President Huerta, from all indications, has determined to brook no further "interference" from Washington. Since President Wilson's last note the dictator has refused to listen to advice that counsels sanity and caution. It is believed that he has fully made up his mind to risk a war.

The situation here is becoming more acute every day. An explosion with wholesale bloodshed is the possibility of any hour.

GUNBOATS SHELL REBELS.

Mexican Warships Rushed to Tuxpan After Town is Attacked.

Vera Cruz, Mexico, Nov. 13.—The Mexican gunboats Bravo and Vera Cruz arrived off Tuxpan and opened fire on the rebels, who attacked the town.

Six Americans were reported to be still in Tuxpan, but they were expected to escape to either the battleship Louisiana or the gunboat Wheeling, which Rear Admiral Fletcher sent to Tuxpan. Twenty Americans have been rescued by the warships.

Making an Actress.
At the amateur theatricals:
Mother.—One thing I must say to you, Ida. Do not laugh in that satirical way you have in the sad parts. If you can't cry then for goodness' sake be neutral.—Filizende Blatter.

UP IN ARMS

DuBois Citizens Protest Against Alleged Extortion.

Citizens of DuBois are up in arms against what they allege is an extortion by the gas company of that town. When the citizens went to the offices of the company Monday evening the doors were locked and when they returned on Tuesday to pay their bills they were forced to pay a penalty of 50 cents for failing to pay on Monday evening.

The company is also said to have increased the rates 12 per cent, per thousand feet, which has greatly incensed the people of the town.

Selling Tickets.

The tickets for the High school play, "The Time of His Life," to be given at the opera house Wednesday evening next, are now on sale and can be had from any of the High school students. Prices, 75 and 50 cents.

ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE PLANS ACTIVE WORK

Will Labor Hard for Nation-Wide Prohibition

Columbus, O., Nov. 13.—Revision of the constitution of the Anti-Saloon League of America in order to make possible a campaign for nation-wide prohibition, managed from national headquarters, was affected yesterday according to an announcement made by the Board of Trustees.

State superintendents will be appointed by a national board of directors and placed in charge of a national superintendent. Wealthy state leagues will assist poorer organizations.

It is proposed to divide the country into sixteen districts, over each of which will be a member of the national executive committee to supervise anti-liquor campaigns. State superintendents will be answerable to the executive committee.

Rev. Dr. Purley A. Baker, general superintendent, vigorously attacked Governor James M. Cox, of Ohio. After declaring that Ohio had sullied her good name by adopting a liquor license law, Rev. Dr. Baker continued:

"The governor has been one of the best friends the liquor traffickers of Ohio ever had."

U. S. JACKIES CHEER POPE IN VATICAN

Pius X. Tells Florida Tars
They Are Fine Men.

Rome, Nov. 13.—Pope Pius X. received in audience Captain Maxwell and 150 sailors from the battleship Florida and presented them with medals.

In order not to interfere with their sightseeing time, which he knows to be limited, the pope gave orders that the marines of the entire American battleship squadron are to be received at the Vatican as soon as they arrive. Pope Pius while patriarch of Venice developed a special admiration for men of the sea. He was enthusiastic over the American "jackies," declaring them the finest he had ever seen.

"The sea gives you men opportunity to live clean lives," he said, "and I can see by your faces that you have taken advantage of it."

As the sailors left the hall they cheered for the pope.

WITHIN THE LAW

Copyright, 1914, by the H. K. Fly company

PROLOGUE.

This is a story of a brave girl who suffered a great wrong. She went to prison for three years for a crime that she did not commit, and when she left prison her record stood between her and a living earned honestly. She gained more than a living, and she got it legally. She met bad men and good men, and she pitted her wit against those of men trained in the intricacies of the law and in the plans of criminals.

Mary Turner is good or bad according to the way you look at her. The police and the representatives of law and order that had condemned her to a felon's cell called her bad. One young man believed her to be good, and he stood by her through storm and stress, through circumstances that tried his soul.

This story gives an accurate if fleeting view of the methods of work of the police and the criminals, and it shows the finish of a brave crook who followed undeviatingly the course he had mapped out.

CHAPTER I.

The Panel of Light.

THE lids of the girl's eyes lifted slowly, and she stared at the panel of light in the wall. Just at the outset the act of seeing made not the least impression on her numbed brain. For a long time she continued to regard the dim illumination in the wall with the same passive fixity of gaze. Apathy still lay upon her crushed spirit. In a vague way she realized her own inertness and rested in it gratefully, subtly fearful lest she again arouse to the full horror of her plight. In a curious subconscious fashion she was striving to hold on to this deadness of sensation, thus to win a little respite from the torture that had exhausted her soul.

Of a sudden her eyes noted the black lines that lay across the panel of light, and in that instant her spirit was quickened once again. The clouds lifted from her brain. Vision was clear now. Understanding seized the full import of this hideous thing on which she looked. For the panel of light was a window set high within a wall of stone. The rigid lines of black that crossed it were bars—prison bars. It was still true, then. She was in a cell of the Tombs.

Crouching miserably on the narrow bed, she maintained her fixed watching of the window—that window which was a symbol of her utter despair. Again agony wrenched within her.

The girl was appalled by the mercilessness of a destiny that had so outraged right. She was wholly innocent of having done any wrong. She had struggled through years of privation to keep herself clean and wholesome, worthy of those gentlefolk from whom she drew her blood. And earnest effort had ended at last under an overwhelming accusation, false, yet none the less fatal to her. This accusation after long wearying delays had culminated today in conviction. The sentence of the court had been imposed upon her—that for three years she should be imprisoned.

There had been nothing in the life of Mary Turner before the catastrophe came to distinguish it from many another. Its most significant details were of a sordid kind, familiar to poverty. Her father had been an unsuccessful man as success is esteemed by this generation of Mammon worshipers. He was a gentleman, but the trivial fact of small avail today. He was of good birth, and he was the possessor of an inherited competence. He had as well intelligence, but it was not of a financial sort.

So, little by little, his fortune became shrunken toward nothingness by reason of injudicious investments. He married a charming woman, who, after a brief period of wedded happiness, gave her life to the birth of the single child of the union, Mary. As the years passed the daughter grew toward maturity in an experience of ever increasing penury. The girl was in the high school when her father finally gave over his rather feeble effort of living. At his death the father left her a character well instructed in the excellent principles that had been his own. Of worldly goods, not the value of a pin.

Yet, measured according to the stern standards of adversity, Mary was fortunate. Almost at once she procured a humble employment in the Emporium, the great department store owned by Edward Gilder. To be sure, the wage was infinitesimal, while the toil was body breaking, soul breaking.

Mary nevertheless avoided the worst perils of her lot. She did not flinch under privation, but went her way through it, if not serenely, at least without even a thought of yielding to those temptations that beset a girl who is at once poor and charming.

Among her fellows were some like herself, others unlike. Of her own sort in this single partition were the two girls with whom she shared a cheap room. Their common poverty in attitude toward the other sex was the unique bond of union. In their isolation she found no real companionship. Nevertheless they were whole some enough. Otherwise they were illiterate, altogether un congenial.

In such wise, through five dreary years, Mary Turner lived. Nine hours daily she stood behind a counter. She spent her other waking hours in obligatory menial labors, cooking her own scant meals over the gas, washing and ironing, for the sake of that neat appearance which was required of her by those in authority at the Emporium, yet more especially necessary for her own self respect.

With a mind keen and earnest she contrived some solace from reading and studying since the free library gave her this opportunity. By candid comparison of herself with others about her she realized the fact that she possessed an intelligence beyond the average. The training by her father, too, had been of a superior kind. There was as well, at the back vaguely, the feeling of particular self respect that belongs inevitably to the possessor of good blood. Finally she demurely enjoyed a modest appreciation of her own physical advantages. In short, she had beauty, brains and breeding, three things of chief importance to any woman.

There had been thefts in the store. They had been traced eventually to a certain department, that in which Mary worked. The detective was alert. Some valuable silks were missed. Search followed immediately. The goods were found in Mary's locker. That was enough. She was charged with the theft. She protested innocence, only to be laughed at in derision by her accusers. Every thief declares innocence. Mr. Gilder himself was emphatic against her. The thiefing had been long continued. An example must be made. The girl was arrested.

The crowded condition of the court calendar kept her for three months in the rooms awaiting trial. She was quite friendly. To the world she was only a thief in distress. At the last the trial was very short. Her lawyer was merely an unfledged practitioner assigned to her defense as a formality of the court. At the end twelve good men and true rendered a verdict of guilty against the shuddering girl in the prisoner's dock.

That which was the supreme tragedy to the broken girl in the cell merely afforded rather agreeable entertainment to her former fellows of the department store. Mary Turner throughout her term of service there had been without real intimates, so that now none was ready to mourn over her fate. Even the two roommates had felt some slight offense, since they sensed the superiority of her, though vaguely. Now, they found a strong satisfaction in the fact of her disaster as compensating very reasonably their own continuance in respectability.

On the day of Mary Turner's trial there was a subtle gaiety of gossipings to and fro through the store. The girl's plight was like a shattering driven hammer and even by the battle dories of many tongues. It was the first time in many years that one of the employees had been thus accused of theft. Sheriff's were so common as to be a stale topic. There was a refreshing novelty in this case, where one of themselves was the culprit. Her fellow workers, latched desultorily at last as they had opportunity, and complacently treated their posts that they were not as she, with reason.

Smithson, a member of the executive staff, did not hesitate to speak his mind, though not too far for they. Yet his comment, unasked as it was, stood wholly in Mary's favor. And he spoke with a certain authority, since he had given sufficient attention to the girl.

Smithson, stopped Sarah Edwards, Mr. Gilder's private secretary, as she was passing through one of the departments that morning to ask her if the owner had yet reached his office.

"Been and gone," was the secretary's answer. "He went downtown to the court of general sessions. The judge sent for him about the Mary Turner case."

"Oh, yes, I remember now," Smithson exclaimed. "I hope the poor girl gets off. She was a nice girl, quite the lady, you know, Miss Edwards. Will you please let me know when Mr.

"Hello, dad!"

Gilder arrives? There are one or two little matters I wish to discuss with him."

"All right," Sarah agreed briskly, and she hurried on toward the private office.

The secretary was barely seated at her desk when the violent opening of the door startled her, and as she looked up a cheery voice cried out:

"Hello, dad!"

At the same moment a young man entered with an air of care-free assurance, his face radiant. But as his glance went to the empty armchair at the desk he halted abruptly, and his expression changed to one of disappointment.

REGRETS.

Regrets are very common and, as a rule, are useless. Regrets are a waste of time in every possible instance except one. That one is the instance in which the soul entertains them too hideously and humbly until they become valuable lessons for the future.

SHOT CASHIER; GOT $10,000.

Bank Robbery by Five Masked Men at
New Hazelton, B. C.

Seattle Wash., Nov. 13.—A dispatch from Hazelton, B. C., says that five masked men robbed the Union bank of New Hazelton four miles east of Hazelton, shot the cashier and escaped with $10,000 after a rifle battle with citizens. A special train was sent west in hope of intercepting the bandits as it was believed they escaped down the Skeena river.

The cashier returning from dinner surprised the robbers at work. One robber fired the bullet striking the cashier between the eyes, but the wound is not serious.

The Profit in Songs

It is not always the composer, unfortunately, who reaps the golden harvest of a song's popularity. For the evergreen "Come Into the Garden Maud" Bille received no more than 4100 for Kathleen Mavourneen's composer was rewarded with a five pound note and the immensely popular "Cheer, Boys, Cheer" was sold by Henry Russell for 60 shillings. In recent years "Some Day," credited with having yielded well over 110,000 was paired with by its creator for 10 guineas. London Chronicle

BROKE DOWN ON THE STAND

Whitman Will Press Advantage Gained—Change in His Testimony Supports Hennessy's Charge—Wood, Lobbyist, Also Testifies—All Evidence Given to Grand Jury.

New York, Nov. 13.—Fear of the outcome of proceedings before the grand jury, it was said, broke down the stubborn denials of George H. McGuire of Syracuse that he was the author of the telegram signed M. that was received by John A. Hennessy when McGuire was put on the stand by District Attorney Charles S. Whitman in the John Doe proceedings before Chief Magistrate McAdoo on the Hennessy charges of which McGuire is under indictment made by him in the course of his campaign speeches on the stump. McGuire admitted that he not only sent the telegram but wrote it himself and then broke down physically. He is in such a serious condition that it is by no means certain that he will be able to appear at the next session of the inquiry.

His collapse was not unexpected for shortly before the inquiry began it became known in the criminal courts building that Whitman had taken the precaution of placing evidence before the regular general sessions grand jury that would enable him to secure an indictment for perjury against McGuire. If he persisted in denying that he wrote and sent the M. telegram three witnesses brought down from Syracuse by Assistant District Attorneys John K. Clark and William D. Embree linked McGuire unmistakably with the mysterious message. McGuire's confession is regarded as especially significant by District Attorney Whitman because it is the first definite corroboration of Hennessy's statements and because it opens an avenue of investigation into the alleged highway and barge canal graft up state knowledge of which McGuire is understood to possess.

120 Persons Killed and Hundreds of Others Probably Injured

Lima, Peru, Nov. 13.—One hundred and twenty people are known to have been killed, hundreds of others are believed to have succumbed and ten small towns in the mountainous Peruvian province of Ayacucho near the Bolivian frontier were destroyed by an earthquake reports of which have reached the authorities here by courier. The survivors are living in the open spaces and are suffering great privations owing to lack of food and shelter. The government forwarded a large quantity of provisions and has appropriated funds for the purpose of relief.

Try to Get Measure Out of Deadlocked Committee.

Washington, Nov. 13.—Senate Democrats in a party conference took up the currency situation with the plan of bringing the administration bill out of the complexities which have grown up about it in the banking committee and putting the measure on the way to passage in the form acceptable to President Wilson.

Before the conference assembled the Democrats of the committee met again in an effort to agree on a report preserving the fundamentals of the house bill, for which the president contents and embodying those amendments agreed upon for its perfection. Senators Owen, Pomeroy, Shafroth and Hollis, who have stood behind the house bill in the long committee fight were prepared for a report and administration supporters believed that Senators O'Gorman and Reed, who have been opposing some features would swing into line when the bill became a party measure. None expected, however, that Senator Hitchcock, the so-called "insurgent" Democrat of the committee would join them. He has announced that he would decline to abide by any decision of a caucus should one be called.

FRENCH AVIATOR KILLED.

Great Captured Captain de Lagardes Craft as He Was About to Alight
Villeneuve, France, Nov. 13.—Captain de Lagardes, one of the most noted French army aviators, was killed in the crash of his biplane as he was landing after a flight in his aeroplane. The captain had turned off his motor power and was descending gracefully when a gust of wind caused his machine to tip over at a height of only fifteen feet from the ground. The captain was thrown out and the motor fell on him, crushing him to death.

SKULL FRACTURED WITH BEER BOTTLE

Henry Emigh Killed in Fight at
Morrisdale

ASSAILANT NOT REVEALED

Reluctance of Witnesses to Fight Peccoliar and the Wielder of the Bottle is Being Shielded by His Friends—Family of Dead Man May Investigate Case.

Dr. George W. Emigh, of Philipsburg, was in Clearfield today applying for letters of administration on the estate of his brother, Henry Emigh, who died at the home of Dr. Emigh on Wednesday, November 5.

Henry Emigh was a resident of Morrisdale, where he worked as a coal miner and at other labor. His death revealed a story which has some very peculiar features about it and which may yet find its way into court.

Hit With Beer Bottle.

Sometime in the latter part of October about ten days before election, Henry Emigh and some person as yet unknown engaged in a political dispute at one of the hotels in Morrisdale. It is alleged that the argument finally led to a fight in which Emigh's opponent was getting the worst of it and seizing an empty beer bottle he is said to have hit Emigh on the back of the head. Emigh was knocked insensible and a Morrisdale physician was in attendance upon him for eight or ten days.

May Be Manslaughter.

On November 1 Dr. Emigh had his brother removed to Philipsburg, where it was discovered that he had sustained a fracture of the skull at the base of the brain which caused his death. Nothing could be done for the injured man and on November 5 he died. His funeral was held on Friday, November 7.

There is so much mystery about the affair that up to this time no correct story of the fight can be ascertained. The witnesses to the affair and the identity of the man who used the beer bottle has not yet been learned. It is stated the man who is suspected of the murderous attack will claim that he hit Emigh in self-defense.

No Investigation.

Although the fight in which Emigh was fatally hurt occurred about two weeks ago, no investigation has been made of the matter. Dr. Emigh and other relatives of the dead man will endeavor to discover the identity of the man who wielded the beer bottle which is alleged to have been the weapon that caused Emigh's death. Emigh was in his 51st year and unmarried.

MOTHER BRINGS BACK HER RUNAWAY BOY

Little Tommy Fleming Had Harrowing Experience

Thomas Fleming, of Gramplan, who ran away from his home last Friday, was found in Williamsport Monday by the Reading station agent. The Gazette and Bulletin of that city gives the following additional information of the boy's experience as a runaway in his issue of Wednesday:

Thomas Fleming, the young lad who was brought to Williamsport Monday afternoon by Stationmaster Garrison of the Reading, was still in evidence at the police station Tuesday evening. His father is expected at any time, and when he comes there will be waiting for him a youngster who is ready to go back to "home and mother." Conversation with the boy elicited quite an interesting little story.

He bought a ticket at Clearfield and arrived in Williamsport Friday of last week at midnight. Hunting around for a place to sleep young Thomas settled himself in a canvas-covered motor boat, under the Market street bridge. During Saturday he wandered about the streets selling a few newspapers which he claims were given him by local news boys, and living on sandwiches purchased with money he had left from his railroad fare. Saturday night was again spent in the motor boat, in spite of the frigid weather. There was nothing exciting doing in Williamsport on Saturday and as his money had run out the nerry had decided to walk home. He had no definite idea as to just where "Gramplan," his home town was, but struck out towards Halls Station, along the tracks of the Reading railroad. By Saturday evening he had not reached Halls so he crawled into a hay stack on the farm of Martin Ault, and slept there overnight. He reached Halls Station some time during Sunday and, finding no better place to rest at night time, he dropped his weary little body onto the seat in the telephone booth at the railroad station. Here he was found by a citizen of Halls, who notified Stationmaster Garrison, holding him until that gentleman arrived.

While "on the road" his only food was the apples he could get from wayside orchards. Thomas is a bright-eyed sturdy little chap and has carried himself like a man making no complaint at any time as to any hardships endured, and always answering all questions in a straightforward manner.

When he left for the night Chief Harder gave the lad some good fatherly advice, counseling him above all else to always stick to his mother as, while other things of life might come in bunches, there would never be more than one mother. Thomas could not trust himself to answer but merely nodded his head, fighting back the tears, while the "boys" of the force silently agreed to the sentiment.

Mrs. Fleming went to Williamsport Wednesday and brought her son home where he will remain contented until he grows older at least.

CLEVELAND FACES SEVERE FAMINE

No Milk For 1,500 Babies In
Storm Bound City.

LIVES LOST ON THE LAKES.

Ten Bodies Found on Canadian Shore. Regina, a Freighter, With Crew of Forty, Lost—Fear That Another Lake Tug Was Destroyed—One Hundred and Fifty Men May Be Dead.

Cleveland, O., Nov. 13. With this city under two to six feet of snow the problem of distributing the available food and coal supplies caused great anxiety. Fifteen hundred babies have been without milk for thirty-six hours, and prospects of getting any milk into the city were not very good, but of other food, except green stuff, a fairly large supply is on hand. The big milk companies made sales only to those who wanted it for infants, and the greater part of the demand was thus supplied.

Factories began shutting down because of the shortage of coal, and they may not be able to open for a week. Retail dealers say that the supply of coal for dwellings and apartment houses depends on deliveries, which just now are impossible.

TWO STEAMERS LOST.

Crew of Forty on Regina Known to Be Dead—Others Missing.

Port Huron, Mich., Nov. 13.—Although many vessel men are firm in their belief that the freight steamship which capsized in Lake Huron, a few miles northeast of here, during the recent gale, is the Regina of the Merchants' Transportation company of Toronto, others are equally convinced that she is not. It is regarded as certain, however, that the Regina went down during the storm. The difference of opinion concerning the identity of the overturned vessel is due to the fact that the hull of the vessel is reported as being black, and the Regina is said to have had a green bottom.

An official representing the owners of the Regina has visited the scene of the wreck, and he does not believe that it is his vessel. A theory held by many is that there was a collision between the unidentified vessel and the Regina, that the former overturned immediately, while the Regina's crew abandoned her and took to lifeboats. Those who adhere to this belief think that the wreck of the Regina will be found in another place.

Lake Tug Missing With Ten Men. Menominee, Mich., Nov. 13. It was reported here that the tug Martin had foundered in Lake Michigan during Sunday's gale and that her crew of nine men was drowned.

It also was reported that Chris Keenan, a deputy United States marshal was on the tug and lost his life.

HON. VICTOR MURDOCK TOMORROW EVENING

Famous Lecturer to Speak in
Y. M. C. A.

Tomorrow evening, in the Y. M. C. A. in Clearfield, Hon. Victor Murdock, Kansas, will open the Lyceum course in this place. Mr. Murdock is an eloquent talker who discusses public questions in a straightforward undistorted manner. He has gained a national reputation as a lecturer and his well-known Progressive ideas have aroused the attention of the country.

The opportunity to hear this gifted orator should not be missed by the people of Clearfield. It is not often that the citizens have the chance to listen to a lecture by such a bright, versatile man such as Victor Murdock is, and those who will hear him tomorrow night will be well repaid for the trouble they will take to attend the lecture.

Victor Murdock, while in congress has been a thorn in the side of those members of that body who have been doing all in their power to advance the interests of those selfish combinations which have grown rich by robbing the people. He is a reformer who honestly seeks to bring about reforms, and his work along that line has caused the old political party leaders many sleepless nights.

Be sure to attend the lecture tomorrow night. Tickets, 75 and 50c.

GEORGE FULFORD, ESQ., DIES SUDDENLY

Succumbs to Asthma After
Long Illness

George Fulford, a member of the Clearfield county bar, died unexpectedly at 4 o'clock this morning at the home of his mother, Mrs. Nan Fulford, on Pine street.

Mr. Fulford had been a sufferer from asthma for some time and was compelled to sit in a chair at night at times. This morning at 3 o'clock his mother was aroused by a noise which she discovered was being made by her son in his efforts to relieve his throat. She summoned Drs. Waterworth and Piper, and they did all that could be done to relieve him, but their efforts to save his life were of no avail, death coming at 4 o'clock.

George Fulford was a well-known man, having been a member of the bar for a number of years. He was 42 years of age and leaves two children. His mother and two brothers, Harry, in the insurance business in Clearfield, and John, at DuBois, also survive.

Will Build New Opera House.

Philipsburg is to have a new opera house next year, parties having decided to give that town another theater building. With a first class opera house in Philipsburg, it is expected that much better shows will come to Clearfield, as the two houses would shorten the distance the troupes would have to travel from Tyrone to this town.

MAY RECOGNIZE GEN. CARRANZA

Hale's Conferences With Rebel
Leader Significant.

MUCH DEPENDS ON OUTCOME

President's Friend Believed to Be Furnishing Information For Official Purposes, as on Preceding Occasion, in Mexico—Huerta's Garrison at Tuxpan Hard Pressed.

Washington, Nov. 13.—Conferences held between William Bayard Hale and General Venustiano Carranza at Nogales are interpreted in official circles here as the first open move by the United States government to show its interest in the Constitutional movement in Mexico.

No officials commented on Mr. Hale's exact status, but on a previous occasion, when he spent three months in Mexico City gathering information, President Wilson let it be known that Mr. Hale was there as his personal friend. Mr. Hale transmitted reports, however, and took part in conferences with John Lind and Rear Admiral Fletcher. Little doubt exists in diplomatic circles that while Mr. Hale still retains the character of unofficial envoy he is furnishing the Washington government information for official purposes.

It was pointed out by some observers that Mr. Hale's conferences were not necessarily a forerunner of recognition, but might be an important factor in determining the future attitude of the Washington government toward the Constitutionalists.

Will Report on Carranza.

Mr. Hale probably will report on the personal characteristics of General Carranza, whether he has the united support of all Constitutionalists or revolutionists and whether, if successful by arms, he would establish a provisional government that would guarantee a fair and free election. There is also a possibility that the information he gathers may be useful to the state department in its exchanges with foreign diplomats here. The diplomatic corps in Mexico City is said to be at a disadvantage in making reports on the Constitutionalists, as its only source of information there is the Huerta government.

WILL ISSUE STATEMENT.

Officially Announced That Wilson Will Announce Mexican Policy.

Washington, Nov. 13.—It was officially announced that President Wilson will issue a statement soon denouncing the policy of this government toward Mexico. No definite time has been set for the statement, but it is believed that it will come within a day or two.

This statement probably will be a full recital of what this government has done in the City of Mexico and a declaration of the policy of the United States toward Huerta and his acts.

It undoubtedly will serve notice on the world that the United States will not recognize the acts of the Mexican dictator or of the congress about to convene and that this government will continue to insist that Huerta must go.

HUERTA WOULD FIGHT.

Dictator, It is Said, Does Not Fear the United States.

Mexico City, Nov. 13.—Blinded by his boundless ambition and a sincere belief that he can "lick the United States," as some of his close advisers have been reported to express it, Provisional President Huerta, from all indications, has determined to brook no further "interference" from Washington. Since President Wilson's last note the dictator has refused to listen to advice that counsels sanity and caution. It is believed that he has fully made up his mind to risk a war.

The situation here is becoming more acute every day. An explosion with wholesale bloodshed is the possibility of any hour.

GUNBOATS SHELL REBELS.

Mexican Warships Rushed to Tuxpan After Town is Attacked.

Vera Cruz, Mexico, Nov. 13.—The Mexican gunboats Bravo and Vera Cruz arrived off Tuxpan and opened fire on the rebels, who attacked the town.

Six Americans were reported to be still in Tuxpan, but they were expected to escape to either the battleship Louisiana or the gunboat Wheeling, which Rear Admiral Fletcher sent to Tuxpan. Twenty Americans have been rescued by the warships.

Making an Actress.

UP IN ARMS

DuBois Citizens Protest Against Alleged Extortion.

Citizens of DuBois are up in arms against what they allege is an extortion by the gas company of that town. When the citizens went to the offices of the company Monday evening the doors were locked and when they returned on Tuesday to pay their bills they were forced to pay a penalty of 50 cents for failing to pay on Monday evening.

The company is also said to have increased the rates 12 per cent, per thousand feet, which has greatly incensed the people of the town.

Selling Tickets.

The tickets for the High school play, "The Time of His Life," to be given at the opera house Wednesday evening next, are now on sale and can be had from any of the High school students. Prices, 75 and 50 cents.

ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE PLANS ACTIVE WORK

Will Labor Hard for Nation-Wide Prohibition

Columbus, O., Nov. 13.—Revision of the constitution of the Anti-Saloon League of America in order to make possible a campaign for nation-wide prohibition, managed from national headquarters, was affected yesterday according to an announcement made by the Board of Trustees.

State superintendents will be appointed by a national board of directors and placed in charge of a national superintendent. Wealthy state leagues will assist poorer organizations.

It is proposed to divide the country into sixteen districts, over each of which will be a member of the national executive committee to supervise anti-liquor campaigns. State superintendents will be answerable to the executive committee.

Rev. Dr. Purley A. Baker, general superintendent, vigorously attacked Governor James M. Cox, of Ohio. After declaring that Ohio had sullied her good name by adopting a liquor license law, Rev. Dr. Baker continued:

"The governor has been one of the best friends the liquor traffickers of Ohio ever had."

U. S. JACKIES CHEER POPE IN VATICAN

Pius X. Tells Florida Tars
They Are Fine Men.

Rome, Nov. 13.—Pope Pius X. received in audience Captain Maxwell and 150 sailors from the battleship Florida and presented them with medals.

In order not to interfere with their sightseeing time, which he knows to be limited, the pope gave orders that the marines of the entire American battleship squadron are to be received at the Vatican as soon as they arrive. Pope Pius while patriarch of Venice developed a special admiration for men of the sea. He was enthusiastic over the American "jackies," declaring them the finest he had ever seen.

"The sea gives you men opportunity to live clean lives," he said, "and I can see by your faces that you have taken advantage of it."

As the sailors left the hall they cheered for the pope.

The dead are Joseph Bullock, twenty-seven, New York, and Charles Burney, thirty, foreman, New York. Three of the injured, including Lewis Perry of 217 West Fifty-first street, New York, may die.

Six Dead When Residence is Burned. Macomb, Ill., Nov. 13.—Douglas Lafferty, his wife, daughter and three grandchildren were burned to death in a fire which consumed their home at Browning, Schuyler county.

PROLOGUE.

This is a story of a brave girl who suffered a great wrong. She went to prison for three years for a crime that she did not commit, and when she left prison her record stood between her and a living earned honestly. She gained more than a living, and she got it legally. She met bad men and good men, and she pitted her wit against those of men trained in the intricacies of the law and in the plans of criminals.

Mary Turner is good or bad according to the way you look at her. The police and the representatives of law and order that had condemned her to a felon's cell called her bad. One young man believed her to be good, and he stood by her through storm and stress, through circumstances that tried his soul.

This story gives an accurate if fleeting view of the methods of work of the police and the criminals, and it shows the finish of a brave crook who followed undeviatingly the course he had mapped out.

CHAPTER I.

The Panel of Light.

THE lids of the girl's eyes lifted slowly, and she stared at the panel of light in the wall. Just at the outset the act of seeing made not the least impression on her numbed brain. For a long time she continued to regard the dim illumination in the wall with the same passive fixity of gaze. Apathy still lay upon her crushed spirit. In a vague way she realized her own inertness and rested in it gratefully, subtly fearful lest she again arouse to the full horror of her plight. In a curious subconscious fashion she was striving to hold on to this deadness of sensation, thus to win a little respite from the torture that had exhausted her soul.

Of a sudden her eyes noted the black lines that lay across the panel of light, and in that instant her spirit was quickened once again. The clouds lifted from her brain. Vision was clear now. Understanding seized the full import of this hideous thing on which she looked. For the panel of light was a window set high within a wall of stone. The rigid lines of black that crossed it were bars—prison bars. It was still true, then. She was in a cell of the Tombs.

Crouching miserably on the narrow bed, she maintained her fixed watching of the window—that window which was a symbol of her utter despair. Again agony wrenched within her.

The girl was appalled by the mercilessness of a destiny that had so outraged right. She was wholly innocent of having done any wrong. She had struggled through years of privation to keep herself clean and wholesome, worthy of those gentlefolk from whom she drew her blood. And earnest effort had ended at last under an overwhelming accusation, false, yet none the less fatal to her. This accusation after long wearying delays had culminated today in conviction. The sentence of the court had been imposed upon her—that for three years she should be imprisoned.

There had been nothing in the life of Mary Turner before the catastrophe came to distinguish it from many another. Its most significant details were of a sordid kind, familiar to poverty. Her father had been an unsuccessful man as success is esteemed by this generation of Mammon worshipers. He was a gentleman, but the trivial fact of small avail today. He was of good birth, and he was the possessor of an inherited competence. He had as well intelligence, but it was not of a financial sort.

So, little by little, his fortune became shrunken toward nothingness by reason of injudicious investments. He married a charming woman, who, after a brief period of wedded happiness, gave her life to the birth of the single child of the union, Mary. As the years passed the daughter grew toward maturity in an experience of ever increasing penury. The girl was in the high school when her father finally gave over his rather feeble effort of living. At his death the father left her a character well instructed in the excellent principles that had been his own. Of worldly goods, not the value of a pin.

Yet, measured according to the stern standards of adversity, Mary was fortunate. Almost at once she procured a humble employment in the Emporium, the great department store owned by Edward Gilder. To be sure, the wage was infinitesimal, while the toil was body breaking, soul breaking.

Mary nevertheless avoided the worst perils of her lot. She did not flinch under privation, but went her way through it, if not serenely, at least without even a thought of yielding to those temptations that beset a girl who is at once poor and charming.

Among her fellows were some like herself, others unlike. Of her own sort in this single partition were the two girls with whom she shared a cheap room. Their common poverty in attitude toward the other sex was the unique bond of union. In their isolation they found no real companionship. Nevertheless they were whole some enough. Otherwise they were illiterate, altogether unbecoming.

In such wise, through five dreary years, Mary Turner lived. Nine hours daily she stood behind a counter. She spent her other waking hours in obligatory menial labors, cooking her own scant meals over the gas, washing and ironing, for the sake of that neat appearance which was required of her by those in authority at the Emporium, yet more especially necessary for her own self respect.

With a mind keen and earnest she contrived some solace from reading and studying since the free library gave her this opportunity. By candid comparison of herself with others about her she realized the fact that she possessed an intelligence beyond the average. The training by her father, too, had been of a superior kind. There was as well, at the back vaguely, the feeling of particular self respect that belongs inevitably to the possessor of good blood. Finally she demurely enjoyed a modest appreciation of her own physical advantages. In short, she had beauty, brains and breeding, three things of chief importance to any woman.

There had been thefts in the store. They had been traced eventually to a certain department, that in which Mary worked. The detective was alert. Some valuable silks were missed. Search followed immediately. The goods were found in Mary's locker. That was enough. She was charged with the theft. She protested innocence, only to be laughed at in derision by her accusers. Every thief declares innocence. Mr. Gilder himself was emphatic against her. The thief had been long continued. An example must be made. The girl was arrested.

The crowded condition of the court calendar kept her for three months in the rooms awaiting trial. She was quite friendly. To the world she was only a thief in distress. At the last the trial was very short. Her lawyer was merely an unfledged practitioner assigned to her defense as a formality of the court. At the end twelve good men and true rendered a verdict of guilty against the shuddering girl in the prisoner's dock.

That which was the supreme tragedy to the broken girl in the cell merely afforded rather agreeable entertainment to her former fellows of the department store. Mary Turner through out her term of service there had been without real intimates, so that now none was ready to mourn over her fate. Even the two roommates had felt some slight offense, since they sensed the superiority of her, though vaguely. Now, they found a strong satisfaction in the fact of her disaster as emphasizing very pleasantly their own continuance in respectability.

On the day of Mary Turner's trial there was a subtle gaiety of gossipings to and fro through the store. The girl's plight was like a shattering driven batter and won by the battle dories of many tongues. It was the first time in many years that one of the employees had been thus accused of theft. Sheriff's were so common as to be a stale topic. There was a refreshing novelty in this case, where one of themselves was the culprit. Her fellow workers, latched desultorily at last as they had opportunity, and complacently treated their posts that they were not as she with reason.

Smithson, a member of the executive staff, did not hesitate to speak his mind, though not too far for they. Yet his comment, unasked as it was, stood wholly in Mary's favor. And he spoke with a certain authority, since he had given sufficient attention to the girl.

Smithson, stopped Sarah Edwards, Mr. Gilder's private secretary, as she was passing through one of the departments that morning to ask her if the owner had yet reached his office.

"Been and gone," was the secretary's answer. "He went downtown to the court of general sessions. The judge sent for him about the Mary Turner case."

"Oh, yes, I remember now," Smithson exclaimed. "I hope the poor girl gets off. She was a nice girl, quite the lady, you know, Miss Edwards. Will you please let me know when Mr.

"Hello, dad!"

Gilder arrives? There are one or two little matters I wish to discuss with him."

"All right," Sarah agreed briskly, and she hurried on toward the private office.

The secretary was barely seated at her desk when the violent opening of the door startled her, and as she looked up a cheery voice cried out:

"Hello, dad!"

At the same moment a young man entered with an air of care-free assurance, his face radiant. But as his glance went to the empty armchair at the desk he halted abruptly, and his expression changed to one of disappointment.

REGRETS.

Regrets are very common and, as a rule, are useless. Regrets are a waste of time in every possible instance except one. That one is the instance in which the soul entertains them too lightly and humbly until they become valuable lessons for the future.

SHOT CASHIER; GOT $10,000.

Bank Robbery by Five Masked Men at
New Hazelton, B. C.

Seattle Wash., Nov. 13—A dispatch from Hazelton, B. C., says that five masked men robbed the Union bank of New Hazelton four miles east of Hazelton, shot the cashier and escaped with $10,000 after a rifle battle with citizens. A special train was sent west in hope of intercepting the bandits as it was believed they escaped down the Skeena river.

The cashier returning from dinner surprised the robbers at work. One robber fired the bullet striking the cashier between the eyes, but the wound is not serious.

The Profit in Songs

It is not always the composer, unfortunately, who reaps the golden harvest of a song's popularity. For the evergreen "Come Into the Garden Maud" Bille received no more than 4100 for Kathleen Mavourneen's composer was rewarded with a five pound note and the immensely popular "Cheer Pops Cheer" was sold by Henry Russell for 60 shillings. In recent years "Some Day," credited with having yielded well over 110,000 was paired with by its creator for 10 guineas. London Chronicle

BROKE DOWN ON THE STAND

Whitman Will Press Advantage Gained—Change in His Testimony Supports Hennessy's Charge—Wood, Lobbyist, Also Testifies—All Evidence Given to Grand Jury.

New York, Nov. 13—Last of the out- come of proceedings before the grand jury, it was said, broke down the stubborn denials of George H. McGuire of Syracuse that he was the author of the telegram signed M that was received by John A. Hennessy when McGuire was put on the stand by District Attorney Charles S. Whitman in the John Doe proceedings before Chief Magistrate McAdoo on the Hennessy charges of which McGuire is under indictment made by him in the course of his campaign speeches on the stump. McGuire admitted that he not only sent the telegram but wrote it himself and then broke down physically. It is in such a serious condition that it is by no means certain that he will be able to appear at the next session of the inquiry.

His collapse was not unexpected for shortly before the inquiry began it became known in the criminal courts building that Whitman had taken the precaution of placing evidence before the regular general sessions grand jury that would enable him to secure an indictment for perjury against McGuire. If he persisted in denying that he wrote and sent the M telegram three witnesses brought down from Syracuse by Assistant District Attorneys John K. Clark and William D. Embree linked McGuire unmistakably with the mysterious message.

EARTHQUAKE IN PERU.

120 Persons Killed and Hundreds of Others Probably Injured

Lima, Peru, Nov. 13—One hundred and twenty people are known to have been killed, hundreds of others are believed to have succumbed and ten small towns in the mountainous Peruvian province of Ayacucho near the Bolivian frontier were destroyed by an earthquake reports of which have reached the authorities here by courier. The survivors are living in the open spaces and are suffering great privations owing to lack of food and shelter. The government forwarded a large quantity of provisions and has appropriated funds for the purpose of relief.

DEMOCRATS CONFER ON CURRENCY BILL

Try to Get Measure Out of Deadlocked Committee.

Washington, Nov. 13—Senate Democrats in a party conference took up the currency situation with the plan of bringing the administration bill out of the complexities which have grown up about it in the banking committee and putting the measure on the way to passage in the form acceptable to President Wilson.

Before the conference assembled the Democrats of the committee met again in an effort to agree on a report preserving the fundamentals of the house bill, for which the president contends and embodying those amendments agreed upon for its perfection. Senators Owen, Pomeroy, Shafroth and Hollis, who have stood behind the house bill in the long committee fight were prepared for a report and administration supporters believed that Senators O'Gorman and Reed, who have been opposing some features would swing into line when the bill became a party measure. None expected, however, that Senator Hitchcock, the so-called "insurgent" Democrat of the committee would join them. He has announced that he would decline to abide by any decision of a caucus should one be called.

Craft as He Was About to Alight
Villeneuve, France, Nov. 13—Captain de Lagardes, one of the most noted French aviators, was killed in the crash of his biplane as he was landing after a flight in his aeroplane. The captain had turned off his motor power and was descending gracefully when a gust of wind caused his machine to tip over at a height of only fifteen feet from the ground. The captain was thrown out and the motor fell on him, crushing him to death.
